Tue German Uprising.

GERMAN PEOPLE A UNIT-CONSOLI

THUSIASM OF ALL CLASSES.

The New York Post has a letter from Frankfort-on-the-Main, dated July 120, which describes so graphically the Uprising of the German people—which has no parallel save in our famous "Rising of the North" in 1861—that we make some extracts from it.

parallel save in our famous "Rising of the North" in 1861—that we make some extracts from it:

In the valley of the Rhenish Palatinate the people find themselves in a very unpleasant position, and expect every day to see the armies engage in battle upon their fields; but even here there is no lament, and from every remote village the enthusiasm for the war drowns the regret for material losses. From the remotest valleys here and everywhere in Germany the peasant youth, the "blue smock," as they are called, are responding with u will to the call to arms.

All along the course of the Raine these "blue smocks" have come into the ranks by thousand, transported in most cases in open cattle wagons, furnished with nothing at all. The young men of the commercial and higher classes have shown a readiness to fall into the ranks deserving of the greatest praise. Carloads of young men liable to military duty, who have been living in England, France, Russia and other European countries, come in every day. Few have failed to respond, and fewer still have had in veiw the penalties for non-appearance in returning when they might have escaped.

and other European countries, come in every day. Few have failed to respond, and fewer still have had in veiw the penalties for non-appearance in returning when they might have escaped.

I have heard of fifty young men returning from London and more than two hundred from Paris.

The enthusiasm among the German students is only equaled by that shown in 1813. In Glessen the lecture rooms have been deserted and the professors found themselves without audiences. The University of Zurich has lost two hundred German students who responded immediately to join their regiments, and as many more are reported to be on their way to Berlin to enter one of the huzar regiments as volunteers. At the Kiel University of the students left to a man. In Leipsus owne hundreds have enrolled themselves, and others have been demolishing the windows of the editorial rooms of an anti-war paper. In all the higher institutions of learning, without distinction of country, the enthusiasm among the German youth is the same.

The greatest readiness has been shown by the individuals and cities in offering their wealth and services to King Wilhelm and the German cause. Berlin has placed a million thalers at the king's service for the exigencies of war. Hamburg has placed a million thalers at the king's service for the exigencies of war. Hamburg has placed a million thalers at the king's service for the exigencies of war. Hamburg has placed at the disposal of the king for patriotic purposes, the first contribution being fivo thousand thalers from a single firm.

In Aachen a non-Prussian German of the conclude one hundred dollars to every volunteer.

being five thousand thalers from a single firm.

In Aachen a non-Prussian German offers one hundred dollars to every volunteer, up to three thousand thalers. A Dresden merchant has offered a prize of fifty thalers to the soldier through whose instrumentality the first Erench cannon shall be captured; and another gentleman offers a hundred thalers to the one who captures the first French standard. Some Bremen citizens offer a thousand thalers to the first battalion of any Hanseatic infantry regiment which shall capture a French cannon. But such cases are too numerous to mention, and I merely give these to show the feeling of the country.

Pablic assemblies have been held in all the large German cities. In Lubeck on the 17th, more than twenty thousand of the inhabitants of the city and the neighborhabitants of the city and the neighbor-od met upon the wide plains outside of the city gates, and, after an address, the assembled multitude, with heads uncover-ed and hands raised, swore to sacrafice their wealth and blood for the Father-Since 1813, the German national feeling never been so earnestly and deeply ed as it is at this moment. For days he desire of all Germany was for peace; o one had the slightest idea that France of which I have shown above. It remains to give you a few extracts from the German press, to show you how deep and universal the following.

man press, to show you how deep and universal the feeling is.

The war cry in Paris, "To the Rhine," was answered at once by all Germany with Becker's celebrated Rhine song, "Sie sollen ihu nicht haben, den freien deutsechen Phate "", "Them will be seeled between deutsechen Phate "", "Them will be seeled be seeled between deutsechen Phate "", "Them will be seeled is centred in the possession of that river. Baden, Wurtemburg, Bavaria and Hesso did not hesitate a moment to declare their intention to support the North in the contest for the Rhine; and the new provinces forgot all their past misfortunes in their anger at the conduct of France and their zeal for the national cause. In Cassel, the capital of Hesse Cassel, the King; on his way home to Berlin, was enthustastically cheered to lead Germany on; and when he arrived at Berlin a hundred thousand people met him and shouted lustily, "To the Rhine!" stred in the possession of that river.

Rhine?"

In Frankfort-on-the-Main, where two weeks ago the King of Prussia was the most unpopular man in Germany, the national feeling is shown everywhere; the troops marching through the city are greeted and cheered by many thousand of the inhabitants, and on the evening after the declaration of war the youth of the city paraded the streets, and assembled in one of the public squares, where they sung the national hymn and "The Watchs on the Rhine." Never was there such a revelution of public opinion and feeling; and all are ready to fight for the fatherland and all are ready to fight for the fatherland and the Ebine.

"East and west, south and north of the fatherland," says the Cologne Zeitung, "have only one feeling—that of indignation at the French assumptions." "Germany is united," says the same journal in another place: "the organs of the Catholic and democratic parties strive with the constitutional journals for the war in which France has involved Germany." "The bitterest particularism," says the Kiel Zeitung, "is entirely lost in German patriotism."
"We are united," says the Frankfort

Tagblatt, "North and south east and west —Prussia, Bavaria and Wurtemberg, republicans and monarchists, liberals and "The hopes of France on German uni-national war."

I cannot better give the entire feeling of Germany on the subject than by quoting part of an article which appeared in the Augsburg Algeneire Zeitzng, and is dated from the Lech, on the 14th of July:
"The question is, are we a nation, were, or shall we become one? It will be a battle in the style of Zeipich and Sosnot be fought on secount of an empty throne, but for the question whether or not we are to have peace upon the soil in-herited from our fathers. It has nothing not we are to have peace upon the soil inherited from our fathers. It has nothing to do with the Customs Union, nor the alliance for defense and offinse; our freedom, our life are at stake!"

This is Father Arndt again. The feeling herein-expressed is universal. It is the true spirit of 1818. The cry in Garmany is, "An end. must now be put to this incessant meddling with European and German affairs on the part of France. Europe will not permit this despotic disturbance of the peace."

The Colone Zestung has a fiery article which closes with a call upon the Germans to arm, in words which find welcome in all parts of the Fatherland:

"Sie cellen him nicht haben, den trelea deutscheu Rhein!" Up, ye dwellers of the distant amber coasts, ye brave East Prussians, who opened the ranks of freedom in 1813! Up, ye valiant Susbians, ye who before now led the front of the battle!

Break forth from your mountains, ye old warrior Bavarians; from your fewests, yo Thuringians and Heesians, be true to your fathers, ye German Saxons who threw off the detested yoke of Frince and went joyfully over to the German fag! Up, all ye who are German, to the Rhine, to the sacred Rhine, with the wings of the storm, if so it can be. We do here what we cam. Rich and poor, old and young are rushing to the flag; the upper class of the gymnania must be released, for even the youth, burning with indignation, will redeem the honor of the King and the German name. Oh, Ernst Moritz Arndt, had thine eyes seen this thou wouldst have known that thou didst not live in vain."

The memory of the good patriot Arndt

The memory of the good patriot Arndt is security enough for the Rhine. He it was who sung, "The Rhine is Deutschland's stream, but never Deutschland's border," and this line is inrooted firally and deeply in every German's heart. In passing amid the crowds of excited possible who through the treats of the site. and deeply in every German's heart. In passing amid the crowds of excited peo-ple who throng the streets of the city from which this letter is written; and call-ing to mind the hatred of Prussis mani-fested here not long ago, the conviction becomes all the firmer that the German spirit is aroused, and the words of Theo-dore Kormer, "Das Volk steht auf, der Sturm bricht los!" cannot be driven out of the mind.

Dr. Hall, in his Journal of Health, says:
If you have walking or riding to do, ride first, because if you walk you may get overheated, and then, when you ride, you may be exposed to an open window or a draft of air while you are in a still position, to be followed by a chill; a plearisy, or lung fever, which is pneumonia.

If on any occasion you find yourself the least bit noticeably cool, or notice the very sightest disposition to a chill running

Soda water is an agreeable beverage, but half a glass of cold water will better and more safely satisfy the thirst, and cost nothing; besides, in taking a glass of water, you stop when you feel you have had enough; this you never do with a glass of soda, but keep on drinking after it is positively disagreeable, and you hate to stop, but drink non again to prevent wasting it.

Napoleon Severely Criticised.

New York, August 10.

A special cable dispatch from London says: Letters from Motz speak in a most undisguised way of the calamitous incapacity of the Emperor, Marshal Lebourd and all the military dandies composing the military staff. The army has entirely lost confidence and a change in command was an absolute necessity to prevent mutiny. All this while there is no official news whatever of the whereabouts of the Prussian army; and under the circumstances no news is bad news. It is stated General McMalom wanted some days before the battle to fire the forests in his front through which the Germans came down unexpectedly upon the French, but the Emperor declined to authorize the step.

De Farre, editor of Le Soir, who has just arrived in Paris from Farbach, says he witnessed the entire destruction of Frossard's corps, and claims to speak for 30,000 French soldiers who were cut to pieces by the fault of their laders, and who lamented with their latest cry that they fell uselessly—universal cry of the army. Mr. Favre says: Give us generals that we can trust. Soir was hitherto a rovernment paper, but now attacks the affinistry for clinging to power and augmenting the garrison of Paris when every soldier is wanted at the frontier. It further eaves: Every soldier now hore is an insult to us. If you are incapable of saring your country, the country must save itself.

Monthly Petroleum Report. Production---Development---Number of New Wells Drilling--Stock of Petroleum in the Region--

For the Mont's ending July 31st, 1870 THE PRODUCTION of several large wells in various parts of the oil region, and by the completion of nany wells in the older districts, which, though not yielding largely singly, yet in the aggregate served to add to the pro duction above all decline in the old prolucing farms and tracts. The average over that of June in the entire oil region, was about cleven hundred barrels per day This occurred principally upon Oil Creek in the vicinity of Petroleum Center at West Hickory in the Scrubgriss and Foster f rm territory on the Allegheny

On the older tructs the decline for the month was not so great as was anticipated and while many firms exhibit hitle change r the monthly yield others show a fall ng off of from ten to eighty barrels only This is due to the favorable season for operations and the plan adopted by many August 1st 1870 perators of keeping from one to three wells drilling, and by this means main taining a more steady and profitable production from month to month

alling off in the yield are the Indepen dent, Chicago, Tallman and Atkinson tracts in the vicinity of Upper Cherit Run and hich are from ten to thirty burrels each below the average daily production for June Tie E onomite Tidioute and Waren Oil Companies and one or two other racts in the vieinity of Tidioule also exo eist ty barr la
